- 49 As an example here is Bruce Springsteen on the track 'Remember When The Music' on Harry Chapin: The Tribute Concert from 1990
- '... I guess there was a time when people felt that music provided you with... a greater sense of unity, a greater sense of shared vision and purpose than it does today. And my generation, we were the generation that were going to change the world. Somehow we were going to make it a little less lonely, a little less hungry, a little more just place. It seems that when that promise slipped through our hands, we didn't replace it with nothing but lost faith...
- ... and you can kind of sit back and say, not cynically but truthfully, that maybe, maybe, all men are not brothers and maybe we won't ever know who or what we really are to each other. But I think Harry instinctively knew that it was going to take a lot more than just love to survive. That it was going to take a strong sense of purpose, of duty and a good clear eye on the dirty ways of the world. So in keeping... his promise to himself, he reminds us of our promise to ourselves and that tonight, alongside Harry, it's that promise that his spirit would have us remember and honour and recommit to. So do something and may his song be sung.'

50 The work of Professor Gregory Maio, a psychologist from Cardiff University in the UK, on values is particularly relevant here. Some of his research and the quote I used is in ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL RESEARCH COUNCIL, 2007. Britain Today 2007. Page 42.

How do you evaluate a joke or a song?

1 The Fear Of The Lord Prolongeth Days: But The Years Of The Wicked Shall Be Shortened. Proverbs 10:27. Available from: <http://www.av1611.org/rockdead.html> (Accessed 18 January 2008.) The site's figures are not reliably compiled or analysed. The rock star deaths the authors use are only the ones they could find a record of. How many did they miss? The figure for rock stars does not include those still alive within a particular generation. It is not accurate to compare the rock statistics with those of an American population when not all the rock stars are American. A more accurate comparison in any case would need to take into account the social breakdown of the two populations. It may be that rock stars come from a particular part of the population who die earlier than the average American anyway. Alternatively, in some cases people may be attracted to rock music because they have mental health problems and singing about them is a kind of release. It may not be enough however and drugs overdoses or suicide may result. In any case it is not the actual rock music that kills them. (However recent research from John Moores University in Liverpool does throw an interesting light on this issue. For more on this go to BBC, 2007. Why Rock And Roll Stars Die Young Available from: <http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/health/6976583.stm> (Accessed 15 September 2007)
